

This bill restricts freedom of expression in an unreasonable way. One way in which the truth is discovered is through discourse and debate (online and in person). This proposed bill would severely and unreasonably limit both of these. Truth is often ambiguous and nuanced. Truth is not handed down by authority rather it reveals itself through discussion and discovery. This bill seeks to instill authoritarian powers into a government body that will seemingly become an arbiter of truth. This set-up does not protect people from wrong information, is unreasonably disrupts the discovery of truth and the freedom of expression
