

Free speech is a necessity to allow a democracy to function. The dishonest and intentionally harmful act of spreading disinformation falls under the category of fraud, for which legislation already exists. The power to restrict speech opens the doors for directing public opinion as has happened in other countries in the 20th century, leading to oppression, corruption and the misuse of power.