

The Government should consider the sustainability of the community broadcasting sector with your idea on additional funding of community radio and TV broadcasting. They would have to commit to community broadcasting with increased funding to include regional and rural station development, community television, community broadcasting's place in the digital era of digital radio future, skills and training for the sector, support Indigenous broadcasting, radio transmission and TV transmission. Then community broadcasting sector to provide Roadmap 2033 with over 4 strategic priorities to include ensure community broadcasting is inclusive and accessible for people living with disability, Community TV is supported to be accessible to Australians in more markets and platforms and lots more. Similar to ABC radio/SBS radio/commercial radio stations and ABC TV/SBS TV/commercial TV stations, community broadcasting tends to allocate national/local networks of community radio services includes radio programming, news services, satellite radio channels, and more, while local/independent networks of community TV stations includes TV programs for their own communities and special and diverse interests, youth programming, programming for senior living viewers, satellite TV channels, local news, local sports and more. Other than the first time should require the additional funding of Community Radio and TV Broadcasting, Indigenous Community Radio and TV Broadcasting and Roadmap 2033 based on the federal government's budget funding as well.
