

When lock-down happened last year, we all turned to the arts for support. Be it music, film, television, books and so on.

I was saddened to discover how few Australian films and television shows were available to watch on streaming services. Only Stan seemed to be any good.

Please improve this. Our culture is unique, it is awesome and it is worth investing in.

And foreign companies should be made to support it, considering the money they're making from us.

Please set a decent target that they have to reinvest in our local market.

Cheers
