Mobile reception at my home in [REDACTED] is a lottery. Frequently nil or drops in drops out. Often can't get reception for lengthy periods or if I can seems capacity of service lacking as outward calls take some time to connect. There has been much overdevelopment at Kellyville ,not far as the crow flies and I suspect the available bandwidth has remained static. In a nutshell the service is no substitute for a working land line. Landline here goes out from time to time when the wind blows strongly IanMcDougall [REDACTED]
