

All across the country, wireless telecommunications infrastructure is helping us access essential modern telecommunications services.

Feel reassured that, in Australia, the technology enabling this connectivity is researched, regulated and safe.