

I'm writing to express my deep concern for the new online safety bill, specifically section 9, which will put all forms of online sex work in danger. Sex work itself is not a problem and is valuable service to some members of society and an important option for people in vulnerable positions and with limited options to support themselves. Sex is not bad. Porn is not inherently bad or dangerous. I'm worried this will turn into a witch hunt and put many already vulnerable sex workers in even more dire straights, forcing them to take risks with their safety to support themselves. We have already seen the problems that SESTA/FOSTA has caused in the USA and around the world as it has made it more difficult for sex workers to safely ply their trade and support themselves.

Regards, Aron