Simon McCutcheon

I am a Production Designer and Art Director who has worked in the Film Industry for over 30 years. We have enormous talent, creativity and passion in this country to make films and TV shows about and for Australians. Without quotas, the broadcast and streaming companies will have little incentive to invest in Australian stories. The industry may survive here, as a backlot for producing international content (as long as the dollar is low enough and there are other incentives), but without local production - writers, producers creating Australian content, the entire industry and all the skills and experience built up over decades could easily be lost.
