

Submission 17 – MVSA review

Dear Sir Madam,

Currently, grey imports are limited to specialist and enthusiast cars. Alternatively, the car must have been manufactured before 1 January 1989. This law was initially implemented 10 years ago in 2004 to myself and many others believe is beyond outdated. As a bare minimum I can only see a review of the 1989 manufacture date adjusted accordingly. As a developing mechanical engineer, an amended date such as 2006 would be a realistic benchmark , allowing cars from the manufactured date to be imported again yet still upholding the current Australian standards for imported vehicles. It is understandable import limitations must be applied however when a constraint is implemented it is only just to keep it up to date with current situations and surrounding markets. This is why I would like to see the 1989 manufacture date adjusted accordingly.

Thank you,

Sincerely

Alexander DelFrate
